

Studies CI. Early Modern Political Petitioning and Public Engagement in Scotland, Britain and Scandinavia, c.1550-1795, edited by Karin Bowie and Thomas Munck, Routledge, Abingdon and New York, 2021, x, p.122, ISBN 978-0367630003.

Contents, citations and contributors I-X

Introduction, Karin Bowie and Thomas Munck, p. 1-8

Karin Bowie, From customary to constitutional right: the right to petition in Scotland before the 1707 Act of Union, p. 9-22

Alan R. MacDonald, Neither inside nor outside the corridors of power:8 petitioning and the royal burghs in early modern Scotland, p. 23-35

Laura A.M. Stewart, Petitioning in early seventeenth-century Scotland, 1625-51, p.36-51

Alasdair Raffe, Petitioning in the Scottish church courts, 1638 – 1707, p. 52-65

John Finlay, The petition in the Court of Session in early modern Scotland, p. 66-78

Jason Peacey, Parliament, printed petitions and the political imaginary in seventeenth-century England, p. 79-92

Ted Vallance, Petitioning, addressing and the historical imagination: the case of great Yarmouth, England 1658-1784, p. 93-105

Thomas Munck, Petitions and ‘legitimate’ engagement with power in absolutist Denmark 1660-1800, p. 106-119